A CHALLENGE TO THE OLDEST INHABITANT.

To the Editor of the Gloss analysat.

Atthough not "one of the oldest inhabitants," I preaume you will allow me to reply to the "challenge to the oldest inhabitant" to give the year and day when the Hudson river was open in January, before 1670, sending you the following information:

The winter of 1789 and 1790 was very mild; the mildest January between 1781 and 1831, the river was open till the 5d of February, though occasionally obstructed by ice before. 1794-5 river closed on the 12th of January; no ice till 3d of January. 1795-6, river was open till 2d of January.

Respectfully, THOMAS S. TOWNSEND.

200 West Fourteenth street, New York.

LUMBERING IN WISCONSIN.—Reports from the lumbering region of the Upper Weil river, in wisconsin, say the snow there is nearly eighteen inches deep, and the prospect exceedingly ravorable for a successful campaign. The weather has been exceedingly propitious thus far, and lumbermen are jubilant. A much smaller number of men than usual are in the woods this winter, and those who have made arrangements for getting out lors will probably get good prices in the apring. The amount of logs and lumber on hand at this date is smaller than at the game time last year. day afternoon, at one o'clock. HERTINE. -- 10 this city, on Friday, January 7.
